RESOLUTION

New Delhi, the 7th July 1956

No. 7-Estt.(B)(66)/55.—The Government of India have had under consideration for some time the possibility of improving the coverage and mode of collection of price quotations utilised in the compilation of the wholesale price index published by the office of the Economic Adviser to the Government of India. With regard to agricultural items, the report of the Agricultural Prices Enquiry Committee has provided a basis for improvement. The quotations suggested by this Committee have been utilised in the compilation of an index with 1952-53 as base, which is shortly to be issued. The quotations for non-agricultural items were also revised after departmental enquiry. It is however considered desirable to investigate thoroughly the suitability of the quotations for non-agricultural items in view of the changing pattern of industrial production and to amend the index when the results of the investigation are available. The Government of India in the Ministry of Commerce and Industry have, therefore, constituted a Committee with the following terms of reference:

- (i) to examine the collection and processing of non-agricultural articles for the compilation of the index number of wholesale prices; and
- (ii) to suggest improvements.

The Committee is constituted as follows:—

Chairman

- (1) Shri N. Subrahmanyam I.C.S., (Joint Secretary to the Government of India, Ministry of Commerce and Industry.

Members

- (2) Shri Y. S. Pandit, Director, Economics Department, Tata Sons Ltd.
- (3) Dr. B. Ramamurti, Joint Director, Central Statistical Organisation.
- (4) Shri V. K. Ramaswami, Deputy Economic Adviser to the Government of India, Ministry of Commerce and Industry.

Member Secretary

- (5) Shri G. D. Mathur, Deputy Statistician, Office of the Economic Adviser to the Government of India, Ministry of Commerce & Industry.

The Committee may co-opt an officer of each State, connected with industrial statistics, in so far as the enquiry relates to that particular State.

L. K. JHA, Joint Secy.

(Communications Division)

New Delhi, the 4th July 1956

No. 3638-C3/PT/56.—The President hereby directs that with effect on and from the 16th July, 1956 the following further amendment shall be made in the Post Office Savings Bank Rules 1881, namely:—

In the said rules, after rule 28, the following heading and rule shall be inserted, namely:—

"WITHDRAWALS BY CHEQUES"

28-A. (1) The facility of withdrawals by cheques is available only in respect of Post Office Savings Bank Accounts standing open at the undermentioned Post Office, namely:—

The Bombay General Post Office.

(2) A depositor whose specimen signature on record with the Post Office is in block letters and a depositor whose thumb impression is on record with the Post Office in lieu of a specimen signature will not be permitted to make withdrawals by cheques.

(3) Withdrawals by cheques will not be permitted in respect of the following categories of accounts:—

- (i) Minors' Accounts;
- (ii) Female Depositors' Accounts operated through agents;
- (iii) Lunatics' Accounts;
- (iv) Accounts of firms and companies;
- (v) Public Accounts;
- (vi) Regimental, Police and other Conjoint Accounts;
- (vii) Security Deposit Accounts;
- (viii) School Employees' Provident Fund Accounts;
- (ix) Miscellaneous Accounts opened under rule 45-B.

(4) The issue of cheque books and withdrawals by cheques are governed by the following conditions:—

(i) Cheque books will be issued solely at the discretion of the Post Office;

(ii) A depositor who desires to avail himself of the facility of making withdrawals by cheques must present his Pass Book and an application in the prescribed form which may be obtained from the Post Office. He must sign the application and the declaration embodied therein agreeing to accept the conditions governing the issue of cheque books and withdrawals by cheques from Post Office Savings Bank Accounts, and his signature to the application must be in strict conformity with his specimen signature on record with the Post Office. In the case of a Joint Accounts, the application and declaration must invariably be signed by both the depositors jointly.

(iii) (a) Every cheque book contains a form of application on which the requisition for a fresh cheque book must be made. In the case of a Joint Account, the application for a fresh cheque book must be signed by both the depositors jointly if the declaration furnished to the Post Office in connection with the opening of the account states that the balance at credit of the account will be payable to both the depositors; otherwise the application for a fresh cheque book may be signed by either of the depositors.

(b) Fresh cheque books will be issued only when two blank cheques are left in the book in use. If the Post Office records indicate that there are more than two blank cheques in the book in use, the depositor will be required to certify on the back of the application that eight cheques have actually been used.

(iv) Before complying with an application for a cheque book, the Post Office shall, if it considers necessary, require the depositor or depositors to attend at the Post Office personally and to produce satisfactory proof of his or their identity.

(v) A cheque book will not be issued to a depositor unless on the date of receipt of his application, the balance at credit of his account is at least Rs. 500 (Rupees five hundred) and his account has been in existence for at least six months.

(vi) Cheque books will normally be issued to a depositor only on personal application at the Post Office. If, however, a depositor applies in writing for a cheque book to be sent to him by post, it will be sent by registered post on his own responsibility and the postage and registration charges will be debited to his account. A cheque book sent by post will be accompanied by an Advice of Despatch, containing an acknowledgment for the cheque book, which the depositor must sign and return to the Post Office at his own cost. A cheque book will not, under any circumstances, be delivered to a depositor's agent or messenger. In the case of joint depositors, subject to the foregoing provisions of this clause, the cheque book will be delivered or sent by registered post to such one of the depositors as may be specified by them in the application form.

(vii) (a) As soon as a cheque book is issued to a depositor it is his duty to examine it carefully and satisfy himself that it is in order and contain the correct number of cheques, that the cheques run in proper serial order and that each cheque is intact. If there are any discrepancies, he must bring the matter to the notice of the Postmaster immediately.

(b) Cheque books should be kept in a safe place under lock and key when not in use. On ceasing to avail himself of the facility of making withdrawals by cheques or transferring or closing his account, a depositor must return to the Post Office any unused cheques and requisition forms in his possession.

(viii) In making withdrawals by cheques, a depositor must use the cheque forms supplied by the Post Office. Cheques drawn on slips of paper or on forms other than the cheque forms supplied by the Post Office will not be paid.

(ix) Cheques must be signed by a depositor in strict conformity with his specimen signature on record with the Post Office. Cheques signed by a depositor's agent will not be paid as the Post Office does not undertake to verify an agent's signature and his authority to draw cheques on behalf of the depositor. Cheques drawn on a Joint Account must be signed by both the depositors jointly if the declaration furnished to the Post Office in connection with the opening of the account states that the balance at credit of the account will be payable to both the depositors; otherwise the cheques may be signed by either of the depositors.

(x) In drawing cheques it is the duty of a depositor to write the particulars of the payee and the amount, the amount being written both in words and figures, completely and distinctly and in such a way as to prevent the interpolation of any other words or figures. Blank cheques should not be issued. The Post Office will not accept any liability whatsoever for any loss caused by failure on the part of a depositor to observe these precautions. Cheques drawn, signed or indorsed in pencil will not be paid.

(xi) A cheque that is drawn as a "Bearer" cheque and is not crossed may be presented by any person for payment at the counter of the Post Office, and it will be treated as a "Bearer" cheque notwithstanding any indorsements on the reverse.

(xii) (a) A cheque that is drawn as an "Order" cheque and is not crossed may be paid to the payee at the counter of the Post Office provided that the cheque bears only one indorsement, namely, the indorsement in blank of the payee, that the cheque is presented by the payee personally and that the payee establishes his identity to the satisfaction of the Post Office. In all other cases "Order" cheques must be presented for payment through a bank.

(b) An "Order" cheque must be properly indorsed before presentation for payment. If the indorsement is written in a script other than the script in which the name of the payee or indorsee, as the case may be, is written on the cheque or if the indorsement is made by means of a thumb impression, the indorsement must be certified by a Magistrate under his Court Seal. A Magistrate's Certificate will not, however, be required if the cheque is presented through a Clearing Bank and such bank confirms the indorsement or certifies that the cheque is being collected for credit to the payee's account.

(xiii) The Post Office does not undertake to act on any instructions contained in a cheque regarding the signing of a receipt before payment or any other matter whatsoever, and the Post Office reserves to itself the right to refuse payment of a cheque containing any such instructions; but if the cheque is otherwise in order, it may be paid and the Post Office will not accept any liability whatsoever in respect of such payment.

(xiv) All alterations made in a cheque must be attested by the drawer's full signature, failing which the cheque will not be paid.

(xv) A depositor who has been permitted to make withdrawals by cheques may also use the ordinary form of application for withdrawal for the purpose of withdrawing money from his account; but each withdrawal from the account, whether by cheque or by means of an ordinary application for withdrawal, will be subject to the various conditions governing withdrawals, as laid down elsewhere in these rules, and the following further conditions will also apply:—

- (a) A withdrawal, whether by cheque or by means of an ordinary application for withdrawal, must not reduce the balance at credit of the depositor's account below Rs. 500 (Rupees five hundred) unless the withdrawal is for the purpose of closing the account;
- (b) A cheque must not be issued for a withdrawal of less than Rs. 5 (Rupees five). If the amount to be withdrawn is less than Rs. 5 (Rupees five) the ordinary application for withdrawal should be used;
- (c) When an account is to be closed, the ordinary application form for withdrawal should be used.

Exception.—The rule prohibiting the withdrawal of a sum which includes a fraction of a rupee will not apply to a withdrawal by cheque.

(xvi) A withdrawal occurs at the time of payment by the Post Office. If a withdrawal by cheque would infringe any of the conditions mentioned in clause (xv) above, the Post Office will be entitled to refuse payment of the cheque; but if the cheque is paid, interest will not be allowed on the depositor's account for the month in which the infringement occurs or for any half year in which the infringement occurs more than once. If the infringements are frequent, the Post Office may, at its discretion, prohibit the depositor from making any further withdrawals by cheques.

(xvii) Notwithstanding that the credit for a deposit may appear in a depositor's Pass Book, withdrawals against the deposit will not be permitted until the amount of the deposit has actually been credited in the depositor's account maintained by the Post Office at which his account stands. If a withdrawal by cheque would infringe this condition, the cheque will not be paid.

(xviii) A cheque will not be paid if it is post-dated (i.e., if the date of the cheque is later than the date on which it is presented for payment) or if it is presented for payment after the expiry of six months from the date of its issue.

(xix) Arrangements cannot be made for the payment of cheques by post. If cheques are received for payment by post, payment will be refused.

(xx) If a depositor desires to stop payment of a cheque relating to his Post Office Savings Bank Account, he must present a request in writing duly signed by him in strict conformity with his specimen signature on record with the Post Office and containing complete information, including the number of his account and full particulars of the cheque. The request will be registered, but the Post Office will not accept any liability whatsoever if any such requests are inadvertently overlooked. If a request to stop payment of a cheque relating to a depositor's Post Office Savings Bank Account is signed by any person other than the depositor or is conveyed over the telephone or sent by telegram, it will not be registered unless and until a regular written confirmation of the request is duly signed by the depositor and furnished to the Post Office. Pending receipt of the depositor's written confirmation, however, the Post Office may, at its discretion, provisionally register the request.

(xxi) For each period of six months, namely, April to September and October to March, during which a depositor is permitted to avail himself of the facility of making withdrawals by cheques, an incidental charge of Re. 1 will be debited to his account, whether or not he actually makes any withdrawals by cheques. If the cheque facility has been available to a depositor for only a part of any period of six months mentioned above, the incidental charge of Re. 1 for the whole period will be debited to his account. For example, if a depositor is permitted to avail himself of the facility of making withdrawals by cheques with effect from the month of June, the incidental charge of Re. 1 for the whole of the period April to September will be debited to his account. Similarly, if a depositor ceases to avail himself of the cheque facility with effect from the month of November, the incidental charge of Re. 1 for the whole of the period October to March will be debited to his account.

(xxii) If a cheque drawn on a depositor's Post Office Savings Bank Account is to be paid at the counter to a person other than the depositor or his agent or messenger or if the cheque is presented for payment through a Clearing House, the Post Office will not insist on the presentation of the depositor's Pass Book at the time of the withdrawal; but the payment of the withdrawal will be subject to the condition that the Post Office will not accept any liability whatsoever for any loss caused by the non-presentation of the Pass Book. In all other cases, a depositor's Pass Book must be presented at the Post Office at the time of each withdrawal from his account.

(xxiii) When a withdrawal by cheque is permitted without presentation of the Pass Book, the Pass Book must be made over to the Post Office, as soon after the withdrawal as possible, so that it may be written up-to-date. A receipt for the Pass Book will be issued to the depositor and the receipt will indicate the date on which the Pass Book will be ready for return to him. This receipt must be given back to the Post Office, duly signed by the depositor, when the Pass Book is returned.

(xxiv) (a) A depositor must arrange to take delivery of his Pass Book at the Post Office counter unless he applies in writing for it to be returned to him by post in which case it will be sent by registered post on his own responsibility and the postage and registration charges will be debited to his account.

(b) As soon as he receives back his Pass Book it is the depositor's duty to examine it carefully and satisfy himself that all the entries made therein by the Post Office are correct. If there are any errors or omissions he must bring the matter to the notice of the Postmaster immediately failing which he will be deemed to have acknowledged the correctness of all the entries appearing in the Pass Book, and the Post Office will not thereafter accept any liability whatsoever in respect of any errors or omissions.

(xxv) It is the duty of a depositor to whom cheque books are issued to take all practicable precautions against fraudulent withdrawals from his account. The Post Office will not accept any liability whatsoever for any loss caused by negligence on the part of the depositor.

(xxvi) The Post Office reserves to itself the right of revoking, for any reason whatsoever, the facility granted to a depositor of making withdrawals by cheques."
